

Big Red Sun Blues (Lucinda Williams)

C / G / D / G G—

1 (Everything is) going wrong, it's not right any more, we can't seem to get along the way we did before. Sun is hanging in the sky, sinking low and so am I, Just for the love of someone and a big red sun.

Ch How'm I gonna lose these big red sun blues?
 Big red sun, big red sun, big red sun blues.

2 True love to hold is worth everything, it's worth more than gold or any diamond ring. But this little diamond and a heart that's been broken, are all I got from you big red sun.

Ch How'm I gonna lose these big red sun blues?
 Big red sun, big red sun, big red sun blues.

3 Look out at that western sky hot over the open plains, God only knows why this is all that remains. But give me one more promise and another kiss, And I guess the deal's still on you big red sun.

Ch How'm I gonna lose these big red sun blues? Big red sun, big red sun, Big red sun blues. How'm I gonna lose these big red sun blues?
Ch Big red sun, big red sun, big red sun blues.

D / G G—

This is an early song composed by American singer-songwriter Lucinda Williams (b.1953), first released on her self-titled 1988 album.
