

The Old-Time Collection

Great Big Taters in Sandy Land (traditional)

Musical score for mandolin in G major, 4/4 time. The score consists of five systems of music, each with a treble clef staff and a mandolin staff (labeled T and B). Chord symbols (G, D7, C) are placed above the treble staff. The mandolin staff contains fret numbers (0-5) and bar lines. The piece includes a double bar line with repeat dots and a key signature change to 6/4 time in the fourth system.

The earliest known recording of this tune was in 1929 by Alexander Campbell Robertson (1887-1975), known as Eck Robertson. He was a Texas fiddler, and recorded some 16 sides during the 1920s. He was recorded again in 1963 by members of The New Lost City Ramblers group.

Great Big Taters