Theory and Application

Warm-Up Exercises 3

ENNETH "JETHRO" BURNS was an American mandolin player who achieved fame as half of a musical comedy duo named Homer and Jethro. He was a master of the mandolin and, fortunately for us, he made plenty recordings which were not pure comedy. The first exercise below is one of the warm-up exercises he taught. As with all exercises, start off slow, and with repetition you should be able, gradually, to get faster.

Jethro Burns's Warm Up Exercise 1

The second exercise is another one from Jethro Burns, but adapted by me to avoid going way up the neck! This time it's exploring arpeggio patterns: the first two bars utilise the G major arpeggio; the next two bars the A minor and bars 5 and 6 the D major and D seventh argeggios.

Jethro Burns's Warm Up Exercise 2

